1. The "Piast" State Weaving Mill in Frydland (Lower Silesia) employs some 2,000 workers, many of whom come from the Warsaw, Cracow and Kielce districts and from beyond the River Bug.

Comment: There were five weaving mills in Frydland before the war).

50X1-HUM

2. The entire output of the factory is exported to the U.S.S.R. Inspections are carried out by the manager Jasinski, a Jew with a Polish name, every Saturday. If a defect is found in a bale the worker responsible has his wages reduced.

3. The quality of the web is so poor that one workman was only able to produce 60% of the fixed norm, so that instead of receiving 3,500 zloty a month, his wages only came to 2,000 zlotys.
